ACCESS & PRIVACY

Information for Tenants

Most residential tenancies in Tasmania are covered by the Residential Tenancy Act 1997 (the Act). The Act applies to public, community and private tenancies, and sets out the rights and responsibilities of landlords, agents and tenants.

QUIET ENJOYMENT

A tenant is entitled to quiet enjoyment of the property they rent. Quiet enjoyment means that the landlord/agent must not interfere with the peace, comfort or privacy in using the premises. If they do, they could be fined.

The landlord/agent is not responsible for any disturbances by neighbours unless they also rent from the same landlord/agent. The local council may be able to help with complaints regarding noise, barking dogs or a loud building site.

WHEN CAN A LANDLORD/AGENT ENTER?

The Act sets out a number of reasons for which a landlord/agent can enter a rental property, and states how much notice must be given.

A landlord/agent may enter the residential premises between 8am and 6pm, by giving 24 hours written notice:

- To meet commitments under the tenancy agreement
- If it is reasonably suspected that the tenant has failed to comply with any provision of the tenancy agreement
- To ensure repairs have been properly done
- To carry out an inspection within 1 month of the commencement of the tenancy agreement
- To carry out routine inspections; once every 3 months, or monthly in a boarding house.

At the end of a tenancy:

When a valid Notice to Vacate or Notice to Terminate has been given, a landlord/agent may enter the premises without tenant permission by giving 48 hours notice in writing, to show one prospective tenant (and anybody with the prospective tenant), with the following stipulations:

- not more than once each day,
- not more than 5 days in a week and
- only between 8 am and 6 pm.

When the rental premises are for sale a landlord/agent may enter the premises without tenant permission by giving 48 hours notice in writing, to show one prospective purchaser (and anybody with the prospective purchaser), with the following stipulations:

- not more than once each day,
- not more than 5 days in a week
- and only between 8 am and 6 pm.

DOES THE LANDLORD/AGENT NEED PERMISSION?

If a landlord/agent is entering the rental property for one of the reasons outlined above they do not have to receive permission, but they do have to give the required amount of notice.

However, if they wish to hold an open house (see below), or enter the property for another reason that is not mentioned in the Act they do need to receive permission.

CAN THE LANDLORD OR AGENT ENTER WHEN I'M NOT AT HOME?

If proper notice is provided as outlined, the Act does not require a tenant to be home when a landlord or agent enters. However, the landlord/agent should make a reasonable effort to make a suitable time with the tenant(s).

ENTRY WITHOUT NOTICE

The Act provides some circumstances when a landlord or agent may enter the rental premises without giving notice. These are where it is reasonably believed that:

- The tenant is ill or injured and unable to give permission.
- A denial of immediate access is likely to result in damage to all or part of the premises.
- There is a risk to the tenant or another person present on the premises.
- Damage has occurred to the premises.
- The premises have been abandoned.

OPEN HOMES

If a landlord/agent wants to hold an open house, (where members of the public are invited to view the property that is for lease or sale) they must receive written permission from the tenant.

If the tenant agrees to an open house, the landlord/agent must be in attendance for the duration.

A landlord/agent cannot force a tenant to give permission for the open house and tenants should only give permission if they are comfortable with the idea. It is a good idea to remove or hide valuables during an open house to minimise the potential for theft.

MUST THE TENANT LEAVE?

No. All tenants are allowed access their residence during open homes and inspections.

PHOTOGRAPHS

An owner/agent must not, without the written consent of a tenant, display to the public a photo or video of the premises that displays any object that might identify the tenant or another person.

Entry to the premise to take photos should comply with standard notice periods. Exterior photos for use to sell or rent a property, can be taken without notice.

CHANGING THE LOCKS

Generally, neither the landlord nor the tenant can change the locks to a property without the consent of the other party or a court order.

However, from 1 October 2015, if there is a Family Violent Order (FVO or PFVO) in place, a tenant can add, alter or remove any lock or security device for the purpose of protection. It is recommended that the landlord/agent is notified as soon as possible should this occur and new keys provided to them.

COMPLAINTS AGAINST AGENT'S OR LANDLORD'S ACTIONS

If a landlord/agent unlawfully enters a property and/or does not provide quiet enjoyment of the property, a tenant can notify them that they are in breach of the Act, preferably in writing, keeping copies of this correspondence.

If they continue to breach quiet enjoyment and/or continue to unlawfully enter the property, the matter can be reported to Consumer Affairs and Fair Trading. Landlord/agents breaching the privacy provisions can be fined.

A copy of the complaint can also be sent to the Real Estate Institute of Tasmania (REIT) if the agent is a member. The REIT represents member real estate agents throughout Tasmania. They will only deal with complaints about members.
